YEO TRIAL 'BREEZE.'

HOW MUCH SHOULD A WITNESS TELL?

CROWN OBJECTION UPHeld AND THEN WITHDRAWN.

MR. JENKIN'S ATTITUDE.

There was a surprising turn in the Carvalho Yeo trial at the Criminal Sessions this morning, when a Crown objection to certain evidence for the defence was withdrawn after Mr. Justice Jacks had upheld it. Mr. Jenkin, however, refused to proceed further with the point, and withdrew Mr. R. A. Green, a Hongkong and Shanghai Bank witness, before the completion of his evidence.

The incident arose when Mr. Green stated in evidence that at no time at the Bank interview, in his hearing, did Mr. Black, of the Treasury, suggest that the cheque signatures were forged.

Mr. Potter thereupon objected to the calling of rebutting evidence on a point which had been brought out in cross-examination, and Mr. Justice Jacks held that the evidence was inadmissible.

Later, Mr. Potter withdrew his objection, conceding that evidence of Mr. Black's mental state at the time might possibly favour the defence, but Mr. Jenkin declined to go any further with the point after matters had gone so far.

DEFENCE NOT TO CALL MR. PROCTOR.

When the case was resumed this morning, Professor Shellshear spoke with regard to a peculiarity of a letter "K" on one of the suspected cheques which was referred to at the hearing yesterday afternoon. He said that he had examined the letter again under the microscope and he was still of the opinion that the peculiarity was a blob, although he had to admit that his opinion was subject to the interpretation that there was a line cutting across.

Mr. Potter:—You say, from the microscope, that in fact there is a line going back?—That interpretation is quite justified.

Prior to re-examining the witness, Mr. Jenkin pointed out that the function of counsel in re-examination was to correct, if he could, any misapprehension which he thought had occurred during cross-examination. As the handwriting points was of paramount importance in the present case, he would ask the indulgence of his Lordship and the jury if his re-examination appeared to be a little lengthy. He would be prepared to accede to any indication on the point.

Handwriting Authority.

Mr. Jenkin then reminded Professor Shellshear that yesterday, or the day before, he had agreed with Mr. Potter that Osbourne's book on handwriting was the greatest authority in the world. A passage was read from that book which was written by the author 18 years ago.

Witness agreed that that book was now out of print, no further editions were published and except by chance it could not be purchased.

Professor Shellshear also agreed that he was conversant with a book written by the same author in 1922, being a "worthy successor" to the other book.

Mr. Jenkin referred to passages in the book dealing with the manner in which examination of handwriting should be approached and emphasising the errors into which an inexperienced person might fall. He also referred to passages concerning errors which were generally fallacious and on the wrong basis.

Mr. Jenkin quoted the book as saying "At least in some measure a forgery will be like genuine writing and there is always bound to be also some variation in the different examples of genuine writing by the same writer. In correct reasoning infers forgery from any variation, or infers genuineness from any resemblance."

Witness agreed with this. He of the "tz" witness said it was also concurred with factors, given frequently the duty of an expert by the author, which would be to give his opinion regarding the conclusive proof of genuine writ-

AMERICAN "KING'S SPEECH."

PRESIDENT REVIEWS NATION'S AFFAIRS.

FOREIGN POLICY BASED ON GOODWILL.

URGES NEW CRUISERS.

Washington, Dec. 4. President Coolidge's annual message to Congress, the last before his term of office expires, covering the whole field of domestic and external politics, was made to-day.

The retiring President referred at some length to America's bounding material prosperity and freedom from industrial strife, going on to stress the many reductions in taxation introduced and the steady economies, which had resulted in an increase of nearly fifty per cent. in the national income.

In the course of last year, he pointed out, the United States had reduced its National Debt by $300,000,000.

Foreign Relations.

Dealing with foreign relations, President Coolidge stated that peace and goodwill in the foreign field arising from mutual understanding has prevailed.

The Pan-American Conference last year, made a valuable contribution to a better understanding and cooperation between the republics of the New World.

Thanks to American intervention, at the request of the Nicaraguan Government, Nicaragua was steadily regaining its former prosperity and had taken a long step in the direction of peaceful self-government.

China Position.

The relations between the United States and Mexico were far more satisfactory to-day than they had been at any time since the Mexican Revolution, and there was every promise of a final adjustment of all outstanding questions between the two Governments.

The position in China had much improved, and American trade there was increasing. American forces in China were being reduced as far as possible.

As regards the Navy, which has been a prominent political question during the past year, the United States, said President Coolidge, have ten comparatively new cruisers and twenty-two old ones.

Desires New Cruisers.

It was quite evident that renewals and replacements must be provided for as soon as possible, and he repeated his desire for the passage through the Senate of the Bill providing for the construction of fifteen new cruisers.

"I wish to repeat," said the President, "for the benefit of timid and suspicious minds that this country is neither militaristic or imperialistic."

President Coolidge concluded: "Regarding the smaller countries, our entire influence is on behalf of their independence. We are more anxious than they to have their sovereignty respected."

President Coolidge afterwards submitted to the Senate for ratification, Mr. Kellogg's Pact for the renunciation of war as an instrument of national policy.—Reuter's American Service.

Old Issues Again Raised.

Washington, Dec. 4. Congress has been given a good start on its labours with the receipt of President Coolidge's annual recommendations for legislation, and immediately many of the old fighting issues of the last session and of the recent election campaign were pushed to the front.

Senator McNary introduced a new Farm Bill, without the equalisation fee principle. He declared it was based on the recommendations in the President's message.—Reuter's American Service.

A SAD MISTAKE.

According to a police report, an Indian private watchman named Kehar Singh, thirty years of age, employed at the Sang Lee matted in Praya East, was admitted to the Government Civil Hospital yesterday, suffering from the effects of carbolic acid poisoning, taken by mistake for gin.

THE NAVAL PARLEY PROPOSAL.

U. S. COMMITTEE DISCUSSES NATIONAL RATIOS.

BRITEN EXPLAINS.

Washington, Dec. 4.

The much-abused proposal for an Anglo-American naval conference on Canadian soil, and Mr. Stanley Baldwin's reply thereto, formed the subject of a long discussion to-day by the Naval Committee of the House of Representatives, but not under the chairmanship of Mr. F. A. Britten, the author of the proposal.

Mr. Britten's suggestion was for an inter-Parliamentary discussion of equality of sea-power, and the British Premier's reply was read.

Mr. F. A. Britten explained at some length to the Committee that his purpose was to "end the everlasting talk of comparative naval strength."

Finally, the Committee passed a resolution reiterating a desire for the extension of the 5-3-3 ratio (Britain, United States and Japan) to all classes of warship.

The new chairman expressed the opinion that the Britten-Baldwin correspondence opened the door for another conference between Britain, France, Japan, Italy and the United States.

The question was, he added, which head of the Governments of those countries would take the initiative?—Reuter's American Service.

AUSTRALIAN BOMB INCIDENTS.

NEW BILL TO DEAL WITH EVIL.

Melbourne, Dec. 4. Following recent bombing incidents in connexion with the shipping strike, the Assembly has passed the Explosive Substances Bill, which provides that any person causing unlawful explosions will be imprisoned for 15 years, whilst anybody in unlawful possession of explosives will be liable to ten years' imprisonment.

The Chief Secretary, Mr. S. S. Argyle, in introducing the Bill, explained that it resembled the Act passed in Britain in 1883 to cope with bombing outbreaks.—Reuter.

FIRST TEST OVER.

COMPLETE COLLAPSE OF AUSTRALIA.

ALL OUT FOR 66 RUNS.

Already stamped as one of the most remarkable games of the long series, the First Test Match ended sensationally this morning, Australia being all out for 66 runs!

Australia's position was well-nigh hopeless when Woodfull and Ponsford went in last evening to open the second innings against an advantage of 741 runs, but even when Ponsford was sent back for 6, it was expected that a brave show would be put up to-day.

Instead the crowd's excitement was limited to the sound of toppling wickets, the whole side, composed of the cream of Australia's batsmen, collapsing ignominiously.

England won by 675 runs. Australia's total is not the lowest in the annals of Test Match cricket, but runs very near. The low record in Australia is 42 by Australia at Sydney in 1897-8.

All Out in 87 Minutes.

The Australian innings occupied only 87 minutes all told, to-day's play lasting 63 minutes.

There were only 2,000 spectators, though the weather was bright and pleasant. The pitch was on the soft side, the ball rising up at the wicket in devilish fashion.

White was absolutely unplayable, owing to his accurate length, imparting remarkable break and spin on a wicket just suited to him.

At the conclusion of Australia's innings, hundreds ran on to the ground and examined the pitch.

The top scorer was Woodfull, who carried his bat for 30, but the only player he got to make any sort of a stand with him was Kippax, who was dismissed for 15. The full details will be found on Page 12.

BERLIN STORM OF DISAPPROVAL.

BRITISH EVACUATION ATTITUDE.

REVIVAL OF VERSAILLES SPIRIT ALLEGED.

PEACE TREATY "LAW."

Berlin, Dec. 4.

Sir Austen Chamberlain's statement yesterday denying the German contention that all Treaty obligations have been complied with, entitling her to demand immediate evacuation of the Rhineland, has given rise to a storm of disapproval in Germany, which is paying attention to his answer on the legal aspect of the question, to the exclusion of his declaration on the question of policy.

A semi-official statement has been given out in Berlin to-day which demands an emphatic repudiation of Sir Austen's words as contrary to the most authoritative interpretation of the text of the Peace Treaty.

Aimed at Pressure?

The statement also asserts that if Sir Austen Chamberlain's statement is aimed at exercising pressure on the German Government in the matter of reparation, Germany will categorically decline to make concessions in this connexion under pressure of the evacuation question.

In political circles, the British Foreign Secretary's statement is described as a revival of the Versailles spirit.

Locarno Mentioned.

The statement that Germany can only demand fulfilment of Article 431 of the Peace Treaty when she has entirely carried out her reparation obligations is held to prejudice the present international situation and to jeopardise the Locarno principles.—Reuter.

Paris, Dec. 4.

The evacuation of the Rhineland and its relation to the reparations question was also dealt with at some length on the French Chamber to-day in the course of a debate on foreign affairs.

M. Briand, the Foreign Minister, reiterated that France's general foreign policy was the cultivation of peace throughout the world without losing sight of the formula "Peace with Security."

"No Right" Agreed.

M. Briand laid especial emphasis on the fact that France must act with her former Allies in dealing with the problems ahead.

Germany, he declared, had no right to exact the immediate evacuation of the Rhineland, but he felt sure that the Committee of Experts to be appointed to deal with the settlement of the reparations problem would successfully acquit that task.

Peace in Europe.

The Foreign Secretary added that if Franco-German collaboration could be established, an atmosphere of confidence and peace might finally be installed in Europe.

Referring to the recent Franco-Italian incidents, such as the Dimodugno murder trial, he expressed the opinion that conflict could never arise between France and Italy for their friendship had been well-tried on the battlefields.—Reuter.

LOAN AS RETURN FOR MONOPOLY.

MATCH COMPANY'S BUSINESS IN HUNGARY.

Budapest, Dec. 4.

The Swedish-American Match Trust has contracted to pay on February 1st, 1929, to Hungary, £12,000,000, the first instalment of a £36,000,000 loan arranged in connexion with the grant of the match monopoly in Hungary.

The loan is to be applied to finance Hungary's land reform schemes.—Reuter.

THE KING'S ILLNESS.

UNCOMFORTABLE DAY DUE TO FEVER.

QUAINTLY WORDED COMMISSION ORDER SIGNED.

FIVE DOCTORS ATTEND.

Though it is stated that His Majesty was much better and stronger at midnight last night than he was on Sunday and Monday, the two bulletins issued from Buckingham Palace yesterday afternoon and evening show that the King spent an uncomfortable day due to a rise in temperature.

The King is fighting a swaying battle, according to an authoritative source, but confidence has been renewed and the Royal Household is full of hope.

The Queen, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Lord Chancellor and the Prime Minister have been appointed by His Majesty to act as Counsellors of State and to act in his stead for the time being.

The progress of the King's illness is being watched with affectionate concern, not only in the Empire, but throughout the world, and hundreds of messages of sympathy and good wishes are still pouring into Buckingham Palace.

FIGHTING A SWAYING BATTLE.

London, Dec. 4. Illness undoubtedly sprang from a chill caught by him on Armistice Day when he stood bare-headed night that His Majesty is fighting before the Cenotaph on a cold and a swaying battle.

The King spent a much less comfortable day owing to the rise in temperature, which, however, is a part of the fluctuating symptoms, which are to be anticipated.

The natural sleep which the Royal Patient obtained on Monday night and early to-day has done much good, and the King is accordingly better and stronger to-night than on Sunday and Monday. Sir Stanley Hewett is spending his third night at the Palace, as a matter of convenience.

Two Bulletins.

"The King passed a quiet morning. Though his temperature is now 100.2, a slight improvement in his general condition, noted in the last bulletin, is maintained." Signed, Stanley Hewett, L. E. H. Whitby, E. Farquhar Buzzard, Humphrey Rolleston, Dawson of Penn.

A bulletin issued at 9.20 p.m. stated: "The rise in temperature noted this afternoon persists. The King has, therefore, been less comfortable. Otherwise, the conditions are unchanged."

Reuter has the highest authority for stating that no need for alarm arises from the unexpected visit to the Palace this afternoon of five doctors, who consulted for half an hour before signing the bulletin. It was considered desirable owing to the developments since Friday night, to review the whole case as regards both the present and the immediate future.

The afternoon was chosen for the consultation to enable all the doctors to see the King in daylight. Hitherto, Sir Edward Farquhar Buzzard, who is Regius Professor of Medicine at Oxford and Physician Extraordinary, and Dr. Lionel Whitby, of the Blandston Institute of Pathology, had only seen the King at night.

Silent Crowds.

Again to-day, there were large, silent crowds constantly outside Buckingham Palace waiting for the posting of the news as President in the absence of Earl Balfour, and read out the Order-in-Council standing in the doorway become customary for workers so that the King in bed a few feet on their way to business in the away could be fully cognisant of West End to pass by the Palace all the proceedings.

His Majesty afterwards affixed his signature to the order paper. The Queen, not being a Privy Counsellor, was not present.

Statement in Commons.

A statement was made in the House of Commons this afternoon regarding the setting up of a State Commission to act for the King.

Mr. J. R. Clynes, on behalf of the Labour Party, asked the One thought that is uppermost in all minds is that the King's

CHINESE WHO WAS HELD UP BY FOUR MEN.

A highway robbery committed by four men in Prince Edward Road early on the morning of November 12, was described to Mr. E. W. Hamilton at the Kowloon Magistracy yesterday afternoon when a Chinese was charged with complicity.

Inspector Fallon prosecuted and in relating the facts of the case to his Worship said that the complainant Ng Sing-hon of No. 107, Kowloon Tong, had engaged a ricksha in Shanghai Street at 1.30 a.m. on November 12 and was returning to his house. On nearing the railway bridge in Prince Edward Road, he noticed four men approaching his ricksha.

The men were separated into two parties, and walked on each side of the road. On reaching the complainant they overpowered the ricksha, three of them attacking Ng and the other chasing the coolie who immediately disappeared from the scene.

The complainant was then robbed by the three men, two of whom were armed with daggers. During the struggle which ensued Ng was stabbed in the thigh. The prisoner was recognised as the man who had held the complainant by the neck.

After returning to his house, and having his wound attended to, the complainant made a report to the Police Station.

The following morning a detective received information and arrested the prisoner in Pakhoi Street. He was searched and on his person were found two articles which had been stolen during the robbery. In a search of all the pawn shops, the detective also recovered a watch which had been stolen.

Mr. L. H. C. Callaghan, A. S. P. (K), gave evidence of the identification parade. He said that the prisoner was picked out by the complainant without hesitation. The case was adjourned.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY.

OLD MAN, OVERPOWERED IN SUDDEN ATTACK.

Following the hold-up at Hung-hom on Monday night, when a couple of desperadoes carried out a successful raid at a Chinese money-changer's shop, the Shaikwan police received news of a highway hold-up yesterday morning. The raid at Shaikwan was also carried out by two robbers.

An old Chinese labourer reports that while leaving the wireless station on his way home, shortly before dawn yesterday, and when passing along the Shek O road, he was attacked all of a sudden by a couple of men. One of them had a big bamboo stick, with which he knocked his victim to the ground, the man losing consciousness. He was unable to recall what happened after this, but on regaining his faculties he found that $50 in money, which he had in his possession, had been stolen. He could not recognise the men, owing to the darkness.

THE SERVICES.

NEW HOME TO BE OPENED BY GOVERNOR IN JANUARY.

His Excellency the Governor, Sir Cecil Clementi, K.C.M.G., has consented to open the new Wesleyan Sailors' and Soldiers' Home on the Praya East on Wednesday, January 30, at 5.30 p.m.

While a sum of approximately $20,000 is still needed to complete the scheme, it is a pleasure to announce that, as the result of representations kindly made by H. E. Major General C. C. Luard, C.B., C.M.G., who has from the beginning taken the greatest interest in the Home, the Army Council has authorised the payment of £250 from the Royal Tournament Profits Fund towards the expenses involved in building the new premises.

STAMP DUTIES.

DISCUSSION AT CHINESE
CHAMBER MEETING.

At the Chinese Chamber of Commerce yesterday, a large gathering of Chinese business men registered a protest against the proposed amendment of the Ordinance relating to the stamping of share-transfer deeds.

Mr. Li Yau-ten took the chair and amongst those present were the compradors of many foreign firms and banks, and heads of many Chinese hong and firms. Mr. M. K. Lo, the Chamber's legal adviser, was also present.

The hardships that the introduction of the new legislation would inflict on legitimate purchasers of local stocks and shares were enumerated in a letter written to the chamber of the Gold and Silver Exchange, an institution representing the Chinese banking community.

After pointing out that business in Hongkong is still being affected by unsettled conditions in China, the Gold and Silver Exchange claimed that the present was the most inopportune moment for the introduction of the proposed legislation. The Chamber was asked to invoke the help of the two Chinese representatives on the Legislative Council, so that the latter body might be made to realise the objections to the new bill.

History of the Matter.

Mr. M. K. Lo, who was invited by the Chairman to speak, told the gathering that they must, in view of the prominence given to the question by the English and Chinese papers, be familiar with the proposed legislation, and added that he was not going to take up their time by going into the details again.

In 1921, said Mr. Lo, the Government had intended to pass a similar bill in regard to transfer deeds, but the then Chief Manager of the Hongkong and Shanghai Bank, who took a deep interest in commercial matters and was able to visualise the harm such an Ordinance would do to the commercial welfare of Hongkong, gave it as his opinion that such an Ordinance would be impracticable. It was then explained that the business of the brokers might be handicapped, and in view of the clamour raised against the Bill, the idea of taxing transfer deeds in so rigorous a manner was dropped and in its place, the Government introduced a stamp duty on share sale and purchase notes.

Mr. Lo said that he failed to see why the proposed amendment should be necessary. The Bill did not explain that but merely stated that the object was to prevent the Government from being defrauded of its stamp revenue.

The new law, said Mr. Lo, could briefly be defined as calculated to compel everybody who bought shares to transfer them into his name, failing which, he was to pay a penalty in the form of late fee.

Petition Being Prepared.

After referring to special facilities to be allowed to "authorised bankers" and "authorised dealers," Mr. Lo announced that he was drawing up a petition, which, when ready, was to be signed by every section of the business community, protesting against the suggested Bill.

Amongst the many instances cited by Mr. Lo during his speech, in which the new law would prove an insurmountable obstacle were the following:

If a person invested money in shares and desired to sell them in a rising market, but for a certain reason had to leave the Colony, then he could not leave his scrip behind with a duly stamped transfer deed, unless the person entrusted with that scrip was prepared to sell it within a month of the departure from the Colony of the holder of the shares.

If a person borrowed money to complete the purchase of certain shares, then on receiving the scrip from the Company he could not attach to it a stamped transfer deed and pass it on as negotiable security to the lender of the money.

Directorates.

In some cases, shareholders might desire to be represented on a board of directors by certain persons, who however, do not hold a sufficient number of shares in the Company to entitle him to take a seat. In such event, it is frequently the practice for the would-be director's supporters to transfer their holdings into the name of their candidate, who, on receiving the new certificates from the company, immediately signs a transfer deed and returns them to his supporters. The new legislation will prevent this.

If purchasers of a company's shares were required to transfer shares at once, on purchasing, into their names, then certain people who would like to invest heavily in any one company might be prevented from doing so, if, by any chance, the articles of association of that company required that no one person should hold more than a fixed number of shares. In the past, a person on renouncing the limit allowed him by the articles of association of the Company, would register his further holdings in the name of another person, from whom he then obtained a transfer deed and thus became, in effect the real holder of the shares.

No Deliberate Fraud.

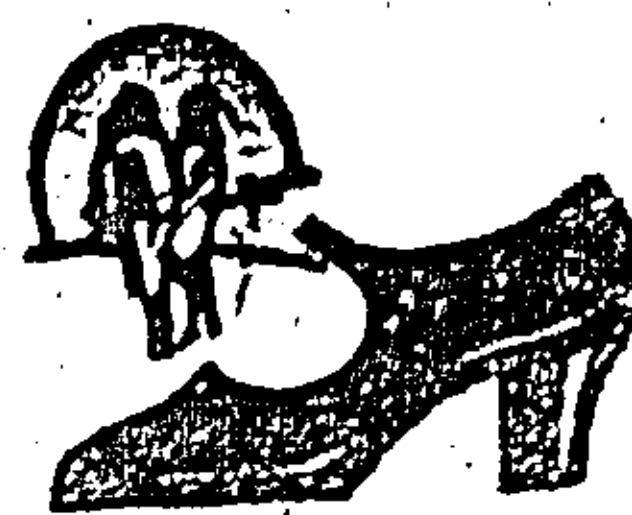

Mr. Lo proceeding said there appeared no reason for the introduction of the proposed Ordinance and remarked that there were not many who deliberately went out of their way to defraud the Government revenue. If a person, by signing transfer deeds, escaped death duties, then there was nothing under the proposed amendment to prevent the signing of transfer deeds, say two days before death. In any case, said Mr. Lo, it was not everybody's intention to defeat the ends of the law, but rather was the opposite case, and no matter what the legislation, freak cases must arise.

Mr. Lo concluded by stating that he felt sure that it was not the Government's intention to deliberately injure the public's rights and he felt sure that any petition forwarded would receive due consideration from the proper quarters.

Many others spoke on the advisability of registering a protest against the passing of the Bill.

The Chamber, after much discussion as to the nature and wording of a petition, unanimously decided to forward one at the earliest possible moment. The wording of the document was left to the Executive Committee.

In the course of the discussion, Mr. Ho Yu announced that he had already drawn up a petition but feared to read it in the presence of the Press, lest the effect should be spoiled.

WOMAN'S WORLD FOR OUR LADY READERS.

Ideas Gleaned from latest Models.

The deep collar of some soft supple material is quite delightful when finished at the edges with dainty hand-worked scallops and tied low in front. A second collar novelty is the one which drapes the shoulders like a fichu and is made with a narrow side which slips through a slot in the wider side. The slender draped hip-line is featured with the flared skirt; often a handsome jewel finishes drapery of this type. Two sleeve notions—one showing the latest flared cuff, and the other the tight sleeve tied at the wrist with gold cord finished with tassels.

Evening Bags.

MAY BE MADE AT HOME EASILY.

If you would like to possess a very Parisian bag for use at the theatre or dance, it is easy enough to make either of several which are attracting interest in the fascinating bijouterie shops on the famous Rue de Rivoli in Paris just now.

One you may cut triangle shape of silk or satin, with sides about five inches long. The bottom is slightly curved, and to this it is attached a double fringe of ostrich feather. The bag itself is entirely covered with tiny ribbon flowers. An opening large enough to admit the hand is left at the point of the triangle, and the bag is carried by a golden cord.

Since ostrich feather trimming is purchasable by the yard, as well as ribbon flowers, you have no more to do than to make and line the triangle bag shape.

Silk bags made of a straight piece sewn round a circular base and drawn up at the top have a big bunch of artificial parma violets, roses, or carnations arranged that the flowers cover the base, and the stalks the sides of the bag, so that when swinging from the wrist it looks like a big posy.

Quite a different type of novelty bag, but a very chic one, is made of white kid, buttonhole-stitched together and embroidered in silks of gay tints. It has four or six sides, and is drawn up at the top with silk cords through little ivory rings. If you happen to possess the remnants of a pair of long white kid gloves in your pieces box, now is the time to make use of them.

Woman's Instinct.

[By Joan Weston Edwards.]

Gradually woman in general has begun to realise that she needs a great many lessons in the art of living: that the instinct and intuition with which she has always been credited are not infallible at their best and are often entirely lacking.

The maternal instinct is, at last, recognised as being no more an invariable factor in a woman's nature than enjoyment of outdoor sport is invariable in man. A girl is no longer expected to be able to handle a baby deftly and know by intuition what agrees with him or how to manage him than she is expected, in this age of motor transit, to be born with an ability to drive a car. A training in up-to-date modern methods of dealing with children is now taken as a matter of course by dozens of girls in every social class. Schools for mothers are a commonplace.

That housewifery is not inbred in every woman; that men are better cooks, better dress designers, and that they can "sew a fine seam" as well as any woman, given the same opportunity of practice, has been proved during the past twenty years over and over again.

Managing a Husband.

But there are still professorships that might well spring into being. The whole art of managing a husband, for instance, is continually discussed in newspapers by all sorts and conditions of women, including many who are accepted as confirmed spinsters. But no one has yet instituted a course of lessons in the art. Why not? Women marry every day with only the most rudimentary ideas of the working of the mind of a man.

A Panacea for Lost Illusions.

The inevitable criticism of any suggestion that such knowledge could be imparted would be that generalities about men—or women—are dangerous. Some of them

The Slimming Process.

[By Lady Nelsh.]

It is difficult to guarantee a slimming process, for what makes one woman thin positively seems to fatten another. I have seen a woman reduced over a stone in a year with diet. Another friend actually fattened on the same diet. Worry will make some women scraggy. I have also known fat women who worried not only themselves but other people.

Diet, reducing salts, worry, exercises and sleep have their effect on people's weight. To-day I have only space to say: Be individual in thinning yourself, just as you are in dressing yourself. Study yourself, find out your idiosyncrasies. Experiment until you lose weight, but do not starve. Because that will only take away your most precious possession—Health.

are, and the girl in love will mentally acquit her own particular fancy of most of the ordinary weaknesses of mankind. After marriage, however, the lessons she had learned could not fail to help her when prequinty had removed her illusions.

If women would understand that what would be unpardonable selfishness in a woman is just masculinity in a man the world would be a happier place.

Women must realise that men are different—not worse, just different by a provision of Nature which, in the beginning of time at any rate, needed different qualities in the male.

The Ideal "Professor."

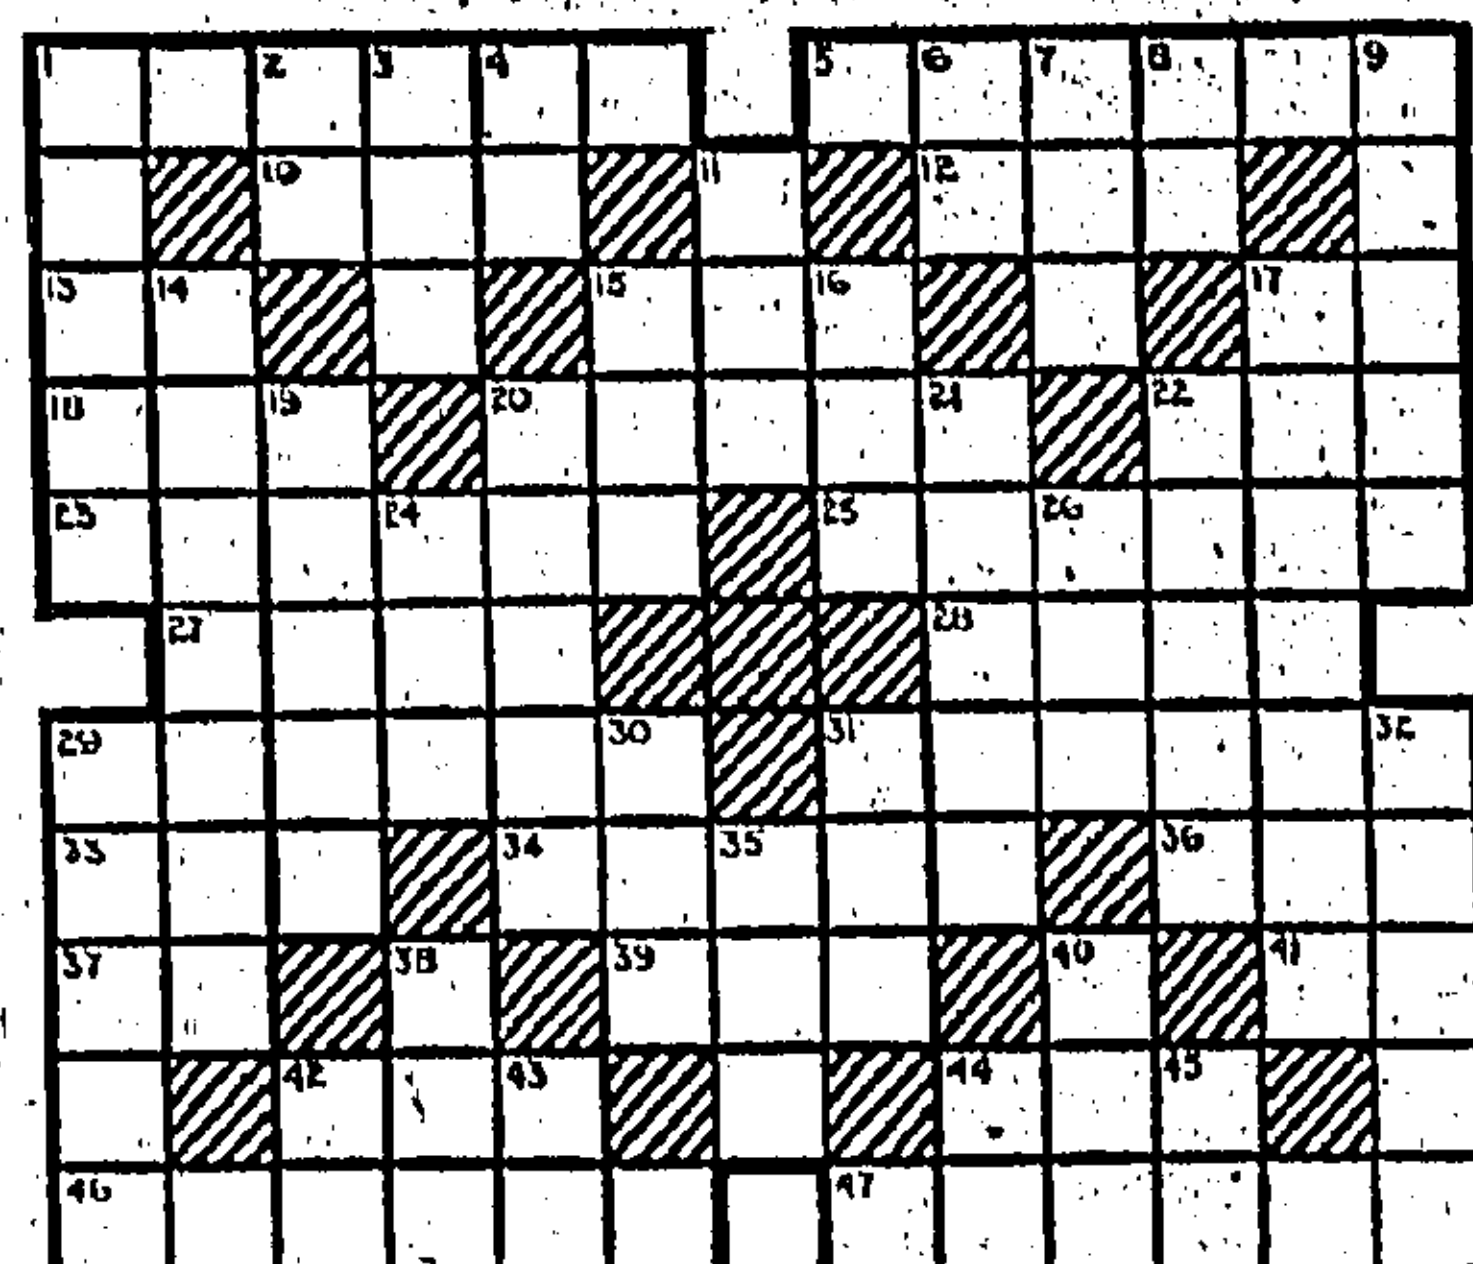

The ideal professor might be hard to find: she would have to be a woman of at least 60, with a wide knowledge of men preferably one who had been brought up among boys, had a husband and sons—two or three husbands for choice.

A Smart Ensemble.

The shapely yoke of the navy skirt forms itself into a waistbelt with one end drawn through a red buckle. It is worn with a parchment colour silk shirt finished at the neck with a navy and red spotted satin bow. A very smart little ensemble for morning wear.

POLITICAL CLOUDS.

If we are to judge from news items and comment figuring in the vernacular Press, there would appear to be some danger of serious discord developing in the ranks of the National Government at Nanking in connexion with matters now being given considerable political prominence. Amongst these may be mentioned the Shanghai opium scandal and the opposition to the abolition of the Branch Political Councils. The former of these two issues is assuming much importance in view of the alleged clash between rival factions and the accusations of hasty action by Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, whilst it would appear that the Branch Political Councils do not intend surrendering to Nanking's orders without a struggle.

At first glance, it appeared that the opium scandal was little else than a squabble between the military and police for possession of a considerable quantity of the drug which had been shipped from Hankow to Shanghai, with the added suspicion that the military were actively engaging in smuggling. But the latest report is that the consignment was destined to the Shanghai Garrison Commissioner, a protégé of Marshal Chiang Kai-shek, and that the latter so far resented the interference of the Police Chief (who is said to have acted under the orders of Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang) as to order his suspension in a most peremptory manner. As consequence of this action, various organisations, including Kuomintang branches, are up in arms against Chiang and there is much heartburning in regard to the drastic step he has taken. If it be true that the Police Chief was acting under orders from Feng, then Chiang would seem to have been rather indiscreet in acting as he did, the more so since the Garrison Commissioner is one of his own protégés. The fact must also be taken note of that Nanking has its own investigators on the spot looking into the matter, and in view of that circumstance only the most serious developments would warrant the suspension of the Police Chief before they had made their official report. A further point is that Marshal Chiang appears to have acted throughout without in any way consulting the Provincial Government or the Municipality. With the facts thus, it is hardly to be wondered at that there should be strong protests against his interference. The incident serves to confirm an impression that Marshal Chiang is rather inclined to take a very great deal into his own hands—a characteristic which is hardly in keeping with the National Government's professions of a democratic and liberal outlook. No doubt much more will be heard of this opium scandal before the matter is finally settled.

In regard to the Branch Political Councils, the report that seven Provinces contemplate joining in a protest against the abolition of these bodies, comes at a particularly interesting juncture. According to Nanking's flat, these Councils are to go out of existence at the end of the current month, but if it be true that the Provinces having a vital interest in their continued existence are uniting against the order, we may expect to see a keen struggle develop. The Kwangsi Clique have never taken kindly to the abolition decree, and it is now said that Marshal Yen also agrees to the protest being sent in. Canton has a very lively interest in this question; maybe now that Marshal Li is back again, he will figure prominently in the developments that ensue.

Street Sleepers.

The question of providing shelter for Hongkong's street sleepers was dealt with in an address given in the Cathedral Hall last evening by the Rev. N. V. Halvard. He spoke of an investigation which had been carried out by members of St. Peter's Church and said that every night in the winter there could be 1,000 street sleepers found, with little protection from the cold, lying about between the Post Office and St. Peter's Church. Last year eight deaths were recorded from exposure. "Such a state of affairs," said Mr. Halvard, "is a disgrace to a British Colony and to our flag, and it is time to put forward some kind of scheme." The fact was disclosed during Mr. Halvard's speech that before the big boycott the Government had considered the erection of shelters at three points of the city, where the street sleeper might obtain a night's rest at a small price, but the troubles of 1925 put an end to the possibility of continuing with the scheme. According to Mr. Halvard, a sum of at least $50,000 would be needed to erect a suitable home, and he mentioned that leading Chinese gentlemen and merchants had promised their support, whilst the Government is sympathetic and Mrs. Southern has promised to help in any way possible. This problem is an extremely difficult one with which to deal, for there is obviously a danger of any really good scheme being abused by those who are work-shy, to say nothing of professional beggars and other undesirable beings attracted here once they know they can get food and lodging. On the other hand, there are numerous casual workers who cannot afford to pay for lodgings and who, whilst finding no discomfort by sleeping in the streets during summer, suffer much hardship by being forced to do so in the winter. The meeting which Mr. Halvard addressed came, to no definite conclusion on the matter, but we agree that this problem is one particularly suitable for the Church to take in hand. In co-operation with the Government and various Chinese organisations, it should be possible to devise some practical scheme, and, once that is done, we feel sure that there will be no lack of practical support from the public.

Hongkong theatre-goers will be sorry to hear of the death of Mr. John Hagen, the principal comedian with the Banvard Musical Comedy Company, which was touring the East up to a few months ago. A cable has been received stating that Mr. Hagen was killed in a motor accident in London on Nov. 18. His excellent work in "Katie the Dancer" and other musical plays will be remembered. He was to have been the principal comedian in the new company which Mr. Banvard has organised.

About Hong Kong

Do you know that—

A Chinese first served on the jury in 1858?

This was Mr. Wen A. Shing, a well-known and respected resident. On the appearance of his name on the Jury List, a discussion took place in the Legislative Council, at which it was decided that the name be retained.

Mr. Wong was for a time on the roll of interpreters at the Supreme Court, and he became a member of the Legislative Council in 1884.

Kemble, Mrs. R. T. O. Lammert, Mr. H. C. Eales, Mrs. G. A. Clements, and Mr. W. R. Farmer. Mrs. F. Gandossi and Capt. Clements also handled their exacting roles with considerable skill, while for scenic effect the "make-up" of Mr. J. Baud as a tramp was a masterpiece.

The audience were thoroughly entertained from first to last and were pleasantly surprised at the excellence of the production. Mr. G. M. D. D. Wolf is to be congratulated upon the competent manner in which he had coached the players. He was well assisted by Mr. J. B. Etherington as Assistant Stage-Manager, and by Mr. A. Hoffmeister as Prompter. The scenery was well designed by Mr. Th. Brameld, L.R.I.B.A.

Amongst the guests present were the Commissioner for Foreign Affairs, Mr. Chiu Chao Hsin, and Mrs. Chiu Chao Hsin, and the Mayor of Canton, Mr. Lam Wen-kei. They were accompanied by Mr. Spalinger, President of the C.A.T.S., and Mrs. Spalinger.—Our Own Correspondent.

CHINESE NAVAL TOUR.

CANTON SQUADRON TO VISIT FOREIGN PORTS.

Admiral Chan Chak, Commander-in-Chief of the Provincial Navy of Kwangtung, is giving another proof of his desire to maintain his department in a thoroughly modern and competent manner. This time he proposes to send a small flotilla to visit foreign ports, particularly those ports abroad where large Chinese communities are to be found.

For this purpose the gunboat Feiyang has been chosen to lead the squadron, but she will first be thoroughly overhauled, probably in Hongkong. Later she will return to Canton from which port she will start with other smaller vessels on her tour. It is not stated definitely whether the tour will be only in Eastern waters or whether it is proposed to visit America and Europe.

This is not the first foreign tour of Chinese naval flotillas. In the early nineties, the gunboat Yang Wu, of the Fukien Naval Bureau, made a tour of eastern waters and again at the beginning of the present century the late Admiral Ching Bik-kuang went to England. In the Chinese battleship Hai Chi to offer congratulations on behalf of the young Emperor Sun Tung and of the Manchu Government to the late King Edward on the occasion of his coronation.—Our Own Correspondent.

The Very Idea!

The striking waiters in one of the smart cafes of Vienna's fashionable district have evolved a novel offensive which recently brought the proprietress almost to her knees, while thousands of spectators in the boulevard outside were greatly amused. When the buxom lady who owns the place tried to break the strike by employing "scabs," the strikers brought up a couple of hundred idle members of the Waiters' Union, who, dressed in their Sunday best, occupied all the tables in the establishment for two days. They ordered nothing but occasional glasses of soda water, costing about one penny, at two hours intervals, so as to be within the law. Not only did they sit idly all day, but they smoked villainous cigars and cigarettes, creating a poisonous smoke barrage which, even the most loyal client of the cafe could not brave.

The prodigal returned very late. "Where have you been?" asked his indignant wife.

"After a moment's reflection he ventured, 'The cemetery.'"

"Good gracious," remarked his spouse, "who's dead?"

"The whole bally lot of 'em," replied her husband cheerfully.

The learned judge of an Australian Court had summed up in a most lucid address to the jury. He had explained the intricacies of the law on the subject with the greatest simplicity, and displayed great skill in arraying the pros and cons of the case. "And, gentlemen," he concluded, "the matter now rests with you!" In the jury room this is what happened:

1st Jurymen: That fellow took me down over a deal I had with him once so I'm going to vote against him.

Foreman: But, gentlemen—2nd Jurymen: He knocked one of my middles over with his car one day, so mark me down as against him.

Foreman: But, gentlemen, that's not what we're here to consider—3rd Jurymen: He turned me down for a job once when I was hard up, and now I'll get level with him.

Foreman: But, gentlemen, remember we are on our oaths—4th Jurymen: I don't like the look of the beggar. I'm against.

Foreman: Well that settles it. Majority for the defendant.

More than once the head of a certain household had had occasion to rebuke his ten-year-old Clara for her excessive eagerness to begin her dinner before grace had been said.

Finally he determined to teach her a lesson in the presence of friends and relatives. So, in his usual formula, he included this:—

"And for what we are about to receive, and for what Clara has already eaten, do Thou make us truly thankful."

Sixty days in prison with hard labour is the sentence that John O'Rourke, a Glasgow truckman, has received for substituting bricks for twenty-four bottles in two cases of a load of whisky which he was conveying from the railroad station to the docks.

News dispatches from the Scottish port say that this case may be an explanation of many complaints received from certain quarters in the United States that whisky cases from the Clyde districts often contained hard stuff in the form of bricks instead of Scotch blends.

YEO TRIAL 'BREEZE.'

junction of letters which might be made and he had to form his opinion from all the other characteristics of the writing as to how, if he did make them, he would do so.

Mr. Jenkin produced two instance Bank cheques and asked:—Is the writing in these two instances the same or entirely different to the writing in the genuine and disputed cheques?—The writing is entirely different from the disputed and genuine cheques.

Do you adhere to your opinion that if he were to write a "1" followed by a block "2" he would write it like this?—Yes, it is my opinion that it would be the same. Witness answered further questions regarding the signatures of Mr. Messer and Mr. Black, dealing with the pressure of the pen. In the course of his re-examination he said that he was very anxious that the jury should examine the signatures under the microscope at some part of the case. With regard to the smudging in Mr. Messer's signature, witness said he had agreed that it did not appear in the handwriting of everyone. If the smudging point was taken by itself he would not attach any weight to it.

As Far as to the Left. Dealing with Mr. Black's signature, cheques were produced where the signature was as far to the left as in the disputed cheques. On the question of pen pressure, Professor Shellshear said that he had made a further microscopic examination last night and had found that the situation was adverse to that he put forward when he examined the writing with a small glass in the box. He had said that the pressure appeared to be greater on the right, but the microscope revealed that the situation was the reverse. Professor Shellshear pointed out that when asked to give an opinion he said that he would like an opportunity of subjecting the writing to a microscopic examination.

Mr. Jenkin said it had been suggested that a forger might get the same pen pressure, witness replying: "I say, that he could not get that quality of evenness and pressure found in the genuine documents."

Ink and Chemistry. In reply to Mr. Alves, who pointed out that Counsel had not directed attention to the composition of the ink used in the writing and asked whether Professor Shellshear considered the point material or not, witness said it was a material point, but it was really a question for a chemist. Witness always examined the ink under a microscope and noted its consistency etc, but he was not an expert chemist. The latter would have to be called in to give definite evidence on the ink. It would be the same with crystals of graphite which witness could tell when he saw them but would not commit himself to a statement. It would require an expert in such matters.

Professor Shellshear also pointed out that he could not detect the cheques in any way. Mr. Braga: You say that you would have no difficulty in picking out the three disputed cheques out of the 3,000. Is that because they have been so fixed in your mind by constant association with them or because of their distinctive features? It is because of extensive examination. I could give a fairly good description of them. I could not tell you the exact numbers. In thousands on them, but I know their form and that is fixed in my mind. I am of the opinion that if I could get three of the other cheques and subject them to the same examination, I should be able to pick them out in the same manner.

Another question put by the jury was:—"It has been suggested that the signatures have been obtained by a trick. Is it consistent with that theory that the position of the signatures is different to the cheques signed in normal circumstances?"

No Speculation. Professor Shellshear replied that he did not think it was his duty to speculate.

Further questioned on the same point, he said the position of the signature was a matter of opinion. He had been asked to give an opinion and he had done so. "I cannot imagine a forger of handwriting committing the blunder of putting those signatures over to the left," he added.

On the question of picking out cheques from a large number, Mr. Potter suggested that if someone were asked to pick out three cheques with the tick to the "1" already referred to in the case, they would pick out the three disputed cheques.

Mr. R. A. Green, of the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Corporation, was the second witness called by the defence. He said that his Far Eastern service dated from 1919. He joined the London office in 1918.

He said that on January 18 there was a discussion at the Bank regarding the three cheques. The question was considered by Mr. Hargreaves, Mr. Dallin, Mr. Maughan, Mr. Black and Mr. Proctor. Witness was not present the whole time, but had occasion to be there for some little time.

Mr. Jenkin quoted from the evidence of Mr. Black in which he said that, at that time, he said definitely that the signature on the three cheques, purporting to be his, was not his.

No Forgery Allegation.

Mr. Jenkin:—Did Mr. Black at any time in your presence or hearing suggest that his signature upon any of those three cheques was a forged signature?

Witness:—At no time in my presence or within my hearing did he suggest that his signature was forged.

At this point Mr. Potter interjected and said that the question of what was said at the discussion in the Bank had been elicited in cross-examination of Mr. Black by counsel for the defence. They had made a point and were now going to knock it down.

After some discussion, Mr. Jenkin asked his Lordship if he ruled that the evidence was inadmissible. His Lordship pointed out that there was a statement from Mr. Black that he made some remarks about his signature, and now Mr. Jenkin was trying to prove that he did not say anything about it.

Mr. Jenkin:—If you say the evidence cannot be admitted, I will be subject to that ruling. The question is "Yes" or "No" is the evidence admissible?

Not Admissible.

Mr. Justice Jackson:—I rule under the circumstances that it is not. Mr. Jenkin asked for his Lordship to note the fact.

Mr. Jenkin:—The point, my Lord, is this, that what a man thinks at a certain time is tested by his actions.

Crown Withdraws Objection.

Mr. Potter:—May I help here? I think I can save time by doing so. It might be suggested that Mr. Black's mentality at that time was important. From the defence's point of view, and therefore I withdraw the objection against it. I cannot do any more than that. I say, on further consideration, it might be fairly deduced that Mr. Black's state of mind might be evidence in accused's favour. Therefore it can be evidence in his case. Having the slightest doubt over the matter, I now withdraw the objection. My learned friend cannot object to my withdrawing my objection.

His Lordship said that what Mr. Black had said as regards his having told Mr. Jenkin that it was a forgery, was brought out in cross-examination by Mr. Jenkin, and the effect of Mr. Green's now being called to give evidence was to contradict Mr. Black on that point. In other words, Mr. Black said he had mentioned it to Mr. Green, and Mr. Green now says he never heard Mr. Black's statement, so this was as far as they had got with the evidence—that Mr. Green didn't hear Mr. Black's statement.

Mr. Potter again said it might be fairly argued that Mr. Black's mental state was a point in evidence for the defence, if the defence could also prove that Mr. Black went to the Bank and admitted his signature. Having that slightest doubt about his own objection to the inclusion of Mr. Green's evidence, he now absolutely withdrew it.

His Lordship (to Mr. Jenkin):—You may go on.

Mr. Jenkin:—Go on with what, my Lord?

His Lordship:—You may go with what evidence you can get from Mr. Green.

Not Going On. Mr. Jenkin said that the only evidence to be got from Mr. Green was as to what took place between him and Mr. Black, of which Mr. Green's alleged statement to Mr. Black had already been dealt with, and it was this which produced the objection from the Crown. Mr. Jenkin added:—"I am not going on."

Mr. Jenkin further said that as the objection had been made by Mr. Potter and had been sustained by his Lordship, who had noted it down, he had no option but to bow to that ruling, and withdraw the witness from the box. He further objected to the withdrawal of Mr. Potter's objection, the matter having gone so far as it had.

Mr. Potter asked his Lordship to treat his objection as if it had not been made. Having a doubt in his mind as to whether it was a proper objection or not, he had absolutely withdrawn any objection to any evidence which Mr. Green would give. He added:—"There are certain divided opinions all around me; it is quite enough for me, as representing the Crown, to withdraw the objection."

GERMAN GOODS IN AFRICA.

HOW THE NEW TREATY WILL AFFECT THEM.

EMPIRE PREFERENCE.

London, Dec. 4. Mr. W. G. Ormsby-Gore, Under-Secretary for the Dominions, replying to a question in the House of Commons respecting the Commercial Treaty between the South African Government and the German Government, said His Majesty's Government in Great Britain were informed of the negotiations which led to the signature of this Treaty.

The Treaty, which did not come into force pending ratification, provided that goods produced or manufactured in Germany would, on importation to the Union of South Africa, be entitled to the same treatment as similar goods produced or manufactured in any other country.

This was, however, subject to the provision that in case of goods in respect of which preferential treatment was, under existing South African legislation, specially accorded to other parts of the British Empire, Germany would not be able to claim any such minimum rates or rebates actually granted to other parts of the Empire.—British Wireless.

HSIN CHI PIRACY SEQUEL.

ARRESTED MEN AWAIT TRIAL.

A naval wireless message received in Hongkong this morning states that the pirates who attacked the China Merchant's s.s. Hsin Chi after she went ashore are now awaiting trial at Poochow.

The junka, in which the pirates attempted to make their escape when a British destroyer arrived on the scene, are reported to have been confiscated.

His Lordship:—You ask me to withdraw my ruling?

Mr. Potter:—If your Lordship can withdraw the ruling—your Lordship can do it. I have no objection to Mr. Green's evidence.

Jury Silent.

The matter was put by his Lordship to the jury who, however, were silent on the point.

Mr. Potter:—Your Lordship withdraws your ruling?

His Lordship:—Yes. Mr. Jenkin then withdrew Mr. Green from the box, adding that he had no further witnesses to call.

"We must be consistent," Mr. Jenkin said. "This oscillation has to be dealt with in some form or other. There was to have been another witness from the Bank to speak on the matter of Mr. Black's statement, but I do not propose to call him. Whether objection should be withdrawn or not, I shall not proceed further. Mr. Jenkin said that was the case for the defence. The Court then adjourned until this afternoon when Mr. Jenkin will make his address on behalf of Yeo.

DEATH OF SHANGHAI RESIDENT.

MR. F. O'BRIEN TWIGG PASSES AWAY.

A brief intimation was received by telegram in Hongkong this morning of the death of Mr. P. O'Brien Twigg, an old and highly respected resident of Shanghai, who passed away yesterday.

The late Mr. Twigg was the managing director of Messrs. P. O'Brien Twigg, Ltd., chemists and druggists and was about 58 years of age. He had been suffering from kidney trouble for some time and was to have recently undergone an operation.

It is understood that Mr. Twigg was either born in Shanghai or had been living in the city since childhood. During his long residence in the Northern port he made a large number of friends and was also known by many local residents.

NO PROTECTION FOR PEDESTRIANS.

CONTRACTOR IGNORES P.W.D. REGULATION.

The manager of the Lam Tack firm, contractors in charge of the demolition work now being carried out on the former sites of Nos. 12 and 14 Queen's Road Central, was summoned before Major C. Willson, at the Central Police Court this morning, for failing to comply with a P.W.D. regulation which required him to build a covered-in hoarding for the protection of pedestrians.

A P.W.D. official said that absolutely no notice had been taken of the requirement, in spite of reminders sent through various channels.

A fine of $25 was inflicted.

TO-DAY'S SALES OF WORK.

MRS. SOUTHERN'S SPEECH AT ST. STEPHEN'S.

BLIND HOME DISPLAY.

The splendid assistance rendered by students of the St. Stephen's Girls' College at the recent M.C.L. Bazaar was touched upon by Mrs. Southern, wife of H.E. the Hon. Mr. W. T. Southern, C.M.G., in the course of a speech this morning at St. Stephen's Girls' College, prior to opening the school's annual sale of work.

Mr. Southern was introduced by the principal of the school, Miss E. S. Atkins, who referred to the honour Mrs. Southern had done the College by gracing them with her presence. They could always look to Mrs. Southern's presence on an important occasion and on behalf of the staff and pupils Mrs. Atkins extended her a hearty welcome.

Replying, Mrs. Southern said she felt that the year would have been incomplete without a sale of work by the girls of St. Stephen's College.

She noticed that the various stalls had been stocked with useful and sensible things and this was a blessing as she could not say the same for every bazaar.

Last year, said Mrs. Southern, she met a clergyman at one bazaar who got a box of face powder! Even that was not so undesirable as it could be given away, but at some bazaar things were sold, which could not even be given this treatment.

The speaker recalled that when she was in Ceylon, she attended a sale where she won a jackfruit weighing thirty pounds. Some of the audience perhaps did not realise what a jackfruit was. She assured them that one weighing thirty pounds was not an easy thing to bring home from a bazaar.

It gave her great pleasure to notice that the stalls were stocked with things useful and pleasant. Those who visited St. Stephen's must feel tempted while they were there and satisfied when they got home.

Referring to the work which St. Stephen's Girls' College did at the M.C.L. Bazaar, Mrs. Southern said that she felt there was no need for her to dwell on that. She was very pleased to notice that the girls of the college have learned to work and to take an interest in those less fortunate than themselves. The need for help did not diminish year by year and one could never come to a dead end in the matter of social service.

Mrs. Southern mentioned that the sum of $17,550 which was collected by the M.C.L. was divided between local and Home charities, so that the maimed and the blind in Hongkong shared the proceeds with the waifs and the orphans in England. That was a very fine international sign for Hongkong and work of St. Stephen's Girls' College was of material benefit to the cause of suffering humanity.

The sale of work was then declared open.

The Stalls.

Each form in the College had its own stall, stocked with toys, paper flowers, drawings, embroideries, knitted work, and a variety of other useful articles, most of which were the product of the girls from the school. In every stall raffles and competitions were arranged.

The Fairlea School had two stalls, where many useful articles were on exhibition.

Of particular attraction were three stalls arranged in the centre of the main hall in which china ware from Kiangsi, lacquer from Foochow and goods from Ceylon and Japan were on sale.

At 11 this morning, when Mrs. Southern arrived, the College was already thronged with patrons and there seems little doubt that the sale will be an entire success from every point of view.

At the Cathedral.

A sale of work is being held at the Cathedral Hall today by St. Peter's Church and the Blind Home.

Toys from Home were there in plenty but of particular interest is the wide range of "woolies" which are being offered for sale. The woolen goods represent the work of the girls of the Blind Home and some of them are distinctly attractive. Children's suits, hats, coats, mufflers, and overalls are only some of many things which the Blind Home offers to the public and these are so well made that they should find a ready sale.

The sale is under the charge of Mrs. G. W. R. Griggs and it is hoped that the public will give the organisers their full support. Tea will be served this afternoon.

American Express Travelers Cheques

Definition of TRAVELLERS' CHEQUES—

"The system of Travellers' Cheques was originated in 1891 by the American Express Company with the object of creating a form of travel currency which would give the holder the security of a letter of credit, and at the same time the convenience of local currency. The Company registered the cheques under the trade name of 'AMERICAN EXPRESS TRAVELLERS' CHEQUES' the world 'Travellers' being spoiled with one 'L'. The advantage of the Cheques was so apparent that other banking institutions adopted the system."

MODERN WIRELESS.

MAJOR MILES' LECTURE ON A POPULAR HOBBY.

Continuing his lecture on Modern Wireless at the Helena May Institute on Monday night, Major Miles, R.E., said:

I have no time to go into a proper explanation of the electronic structure of matter, and can only state a few facts briefly.

Matter is composed of little bricks termed "Molecules." Molecules are composed of smaller elementary bricks called "Atoms."

The Atoms again are composed of little electrical bricks called "Electrons" and "Protons"—small negative and positive electrical charges.

It is a wonderful thought that the whole Universe is made up of those minute electrical charges alone.

To those interested in the subject I can strongly recommend Sir Oliver Lodge's book "Aether and Reality."

Those electrons are never in a state of rest, but are perpetually on the move—like children. Their movements effect a radiation of energy in the form of aether waves, which differ, as I said before, in the nature of their effects according to the rate of vibration of the electrons in the vibrating body—producing 'X' rays, light, or wireless waves according to whether the electrons are vibrating fast or slowly.

They are set in motion in a conductor by the application of an "Electromotive Force." From a Dynamo or Electric Cell, and their flow in the conductor is termed an Electric Current. After this sketchy reference to the elements of physics, chemistry and electricity, we can now turn our attention more particularly to the problem of how electron movements are generated in an aether wave at the rate required to cause the radiation of wireless waves.

Wireless.

The two essential and fundamental components of any wireless set are—cells of wire called Inductances, and combinations of metal plates with air or some other insulator between them, called Condensers.

An Inductance has an electrical property corresponding to Weight, and a Condenser a property corresponding to Springiness or Elasticity, and a combination of Inductance and Condenser forms an electrical oscillator which can be set in vibration just as readily as a mechanical oscillator, such as the balance wheel of a watch, or a violin or piano string.

Consider the balance wheel of a watch for a moment. One has a wheel of a certain definite weight, accurately balanced, to which is attached the Hair Spring, whose tension controls the frequency at which the wheel oscillates (normally one cycle per second). The motive force is the Main Spring of the watch.

Similarly in Wireless. One has a combination of Inductances and Condensers, carefully chosen or adjusted so as to oscillate electrically at the rate which gives the frequency or wavelength desired.

The motive force that maintains the oscillation is the Wireless Plant. This may be one of four types—The Spark System, the Poulsen Arc System, the High Frequency Alternator System, and

The Valve System: but the first three have been practically superseded by the fourth.

As Tennyson might have said: "Our wireless systems have their day, 'They have their day and cease to be.'"

In Memoriam.

It would be beyond the scope of this lecture, and confusing to you, were I to go into a description of them, and you should consult one of the numerous excellent books on the subject, such as that by Captain Eckersley of the B.B.C.

The Aerial.

Having generated in the electrical oscillation in a wireless circuit, one must get it away from the station, and this is done by the "aerial" wires. These are suspended from masts and connected to the wireless plant by other wires termed "feeders."

The combination of overhead wires and the ground below them constitutes a "Condenser."

The wireless plant causes electrons to rush up and down the aerial, charging it up to very high voltages with respect to the earth.

This results in a radiation of energy in the form of an Aether Wave.

The wireless waves having left the aerial spread out over the surface of the earth in the form of circles, like the ripples on the surface of a pond when you drop a stone into it, or like heat waves from a red-hot iron ball.

They travel at the same speed as all other aether waves, namely 186,000 miles per second.

Heavenly Layer.

One may well ask why they stick to the surface of the earth at all, and do not shoot off into space.

The reason alleged is that the upper layers of the atmosphere of the earth are rendered opaque to them by the action of the sun's rays, and this effect persists even during darkness.

The earth is thus surrounded by a shell which keeps the waves inside it, and they travel round the earth in a sort of "whispering gallery."

This upper opaque layer is generally termed the "Heavenly" layer, in honour of the physicist who first postulated it.

PROTESTS AGAINST ALLEGED POLICE VIOLENCE.

Allahabad, Dec. 4.

As a protest against the alleged unnecessary violence of the police in dealing with Nationalist demonstrators against the Simon Commission at Lahore and Lucknow, in which the late Mr. Lajpat Rai was injured, Mr. Motilal Nehru has appealed to the Nationalist newspapers to refrain from publishing the proceedings of the Commission, also urging a social boycott of the participants in "assaults" on the demonstrators as well as all co-operating with the Commission.—Reuter.

A Change of View.

Lucknow, Dec. 4.

The United Provinces Landlords' Association has rescinded its previous decision to boycott the Simon Commission, and has submitted a memorandum of their views.

Sir John Simon has announced the appointment of a small committee of the wings of the conference to enquire into the claims of the depressed and other backward classes in the United Provinces.—Reuter.

ANKING PIRACY.

ACCUSED COMMITTED FOR TRIAL.

Evidence in connexion with the preliminary trial, before Major C. Wilson at the Central Police Court, of Yuen Ping-kwan, charged with being implicated in the piracy of the B. and S. Anking, was concluded yesterday afternoon, the accused being committed for trial at the forthcoming Criminal Sessions at the Supreme Court.

Inspector Darling said, with regard to the finding of certain pieces of jewellery in the possession of the accused, that he had gone round to the ship, with the view to their identification by possible owners amongst the officers and crew, but in this he had failed.

A.S.P. Murphy also said the results were negative after an advertisement had been inserted in the native press, there being so far, no claimants for the jewellery.

THE NEW PRIMATE.

IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY AT HIS ENTHRONEMENT.

London, Dec. 4.

Clergy from all parts of the world, representing many denominations, were present at Canterbury Cathedral to-day, when the enthronement of Doctor Cosmo Gordon Lang as Archbishop of Canterbury and Primate of all England was conducted, with impressive ceremonial.

Owing to the King's illness some notable persons, including the Prime Minister, were prevented from attending, but ritual appropriate to the occasion was carried out in full before a congregation of 4,500.

In accordance with precedent, the Archbishop was placed in the archiepiscopal throne by the Archdeacon of Canterbury. The Dean of Canterbury, while the anthem was sung, conducted the Archbishop to the marble chair of Saint Augustine, where he was seated as a symbol that he is the successor of Augustine. His Grace gave the first Blessing at the High Altar, and while the congregation remained kneeling he moved to the steps by the choir screen to bless the people in the nave and then to the open space outside the west door of the Cathedral to bless the City, the country and its people.—British Wireless.

Ninety-Seventh Archbishop.

London, Dec. 4.

In the marble chair of St. Augustine, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Lang, was ceremoniously enthroned in Canterbury Cathedral, the ninety-seventh Archbishop since Augustine. The congregation of many thousands came from far and near, comprising men famous in all walks of life, this being significant of the association of the Church with national and civic life.—Reuter.

EXTRADITION CASE.

PRISONER'S OUTBURST ON HEARING DECISION.

The extradition case concerning Chan Ying-sam, alias Leung Shing, who is wanted by the Canton authorities on a charge of kidnapping and holding for ransom the two young children of a wealthy money-changer of that city, was concluded before Mr. R. E. Lindsay at the Central Police Court yesterday afternoon.

An order was made by the Court for the committal of the accused to the gaol, pending his surrender, which would be effected as soon as the necessary order was received from the Governor. The customary period of a fortnight was allowed for an appeal to be lodged on a writ of habeas corpus if the accused should so desire.

Accused asked for further investigation to be made in regard to his claim of being formerly employed here, as a godown hand by the Kowloon Wharf and Godown Company. He declared that he had been wrongly identified; that his name was not Chan Ying-sam but Leung Shing; and protested against being sent to Canton where he thought the fairer course would be to send him to gaol here or alternatively, to deport him to a place of his own choice.

Except that he was reminded of the choice still left to him of an appeal, no attention was paid to the outburst, and the accused was led away.

AFGHAN REBELLION OUTRAGES.

BRITISH POST OFFICE AMONG ATTACKED BUILDINGS.

ROYAL CARS WRECKED.

Peshawar, Dec. 4.
A connected account is now available of the rebellion of the Shinwari tribe against the "westernising" reforms of King Amanullah, which recently led to the closing of the road from Dacca to Jelalabad owing to the rebels sniping the Afghan outposts.

It is shown that the rebels attacked the Provincial Offices and a hotel in the Baghlikaukab, the British Post Office, the Civil Servants' quarters, and burned three lorries loaded with petrol.

They also destroyed ten new Fiat motor-cars belonging to the Government, whilst the King's Palace, called the Sirajulmimar, was burnt.

The rebellious tribes were dispersed on Saturday with ten casualties on either side, including an Afghan Colonel and a Sergeant-Major.

It has since been reported that the Shinwaris have been joined by the Khugianis and the Mohmands, and that Jelalabad is in a state of siege, the Government forces being for the time out-numbered.

WHO WAS THE FIRST AIRMAN?

ARGENTINE ANNOYED WITH AMERICA.

Rio de Janeiro, Dec. 4.
A sensation has been caused here owing to the decision of the Argentine Government not to participate in the International Civil Aeronautic Conference which is to be held in Washington from December 12th to 14th.

The newspapers justify the refusal owing to the programme of the Conference including a visit to Kitty Hawk, North Carolina, to pay homage to the Wright brothers as the first real airmen, whereas Brazil claims this distinction for the Brazilian airman Alfredo Santos. —Reuter's American Service.

SHANGHAI MAYOR RESIGNS.

NEW DEVELOPMENT IN OPIUM SCANDAL.

FOREIGNERS AND CHINESE AS WITNESSES.

RUSSIANS INVOLVED?

Shanghai, Dec. 5.
The Mayor of Greater Shanghai, Chang Ting-fan, has telegraphed to Nanking vigorously protesting against the suspension of the Commissioner of Public Safety in connexion with the opium scandal and demanding his own suspension.

Mr. Chang Ting-fan virtually accuses the National Opium Suppression Commission of "framing" him in order to involve the Municipality in a political scandal.

In the meantime, General Pei Chung-wei has announced the organisation of a new division of troops of which he intends appointing the Mayor, Commander.

It seems therefore that the quarrel will resolve itself into a trial of strength between the Kwangsi faction and the adherents of Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang.

Meanwhile Chinese political circles are immensely interested in the question of the ownership of the opium. The position is complicated due to the forthcoming conference.

Disgranted politicians are likely to make a serious attempt to evict the Government on the ground that the latter is false to the doctrines of the late Dr. Sun Yat-sen. —Our Own Correspondent.

Another Suspension.

Shanghai, Dec. 4.
Arising out of the opium scandal, the Mayor of Greater Shanghai, Mr. Chang Ting-fan, sprang a surprise yesterday by announcing his resignation. He telegraphed his decision to the National Government and to Marshal Chiang Kai-shek.

Meanwhile, the Shanghai Garrison Headquarters have received an order from the National Government suspending Mr. Fu Chao-sen, the head of the Intelligence Department of the Garrison Headquarters. The order demands the immediate presence in Nanking of Mr. Fu.

On the receipt of the resignation of the Shanghai Mayor, it is said that Marshal Chiang Kai-shek expressed a desire to appoint one of his close associates to the post. In tendering his resignation, Mr. Chang Ting-fan pointed out that the Municipal Government administered the Police Force, and if the National Government should deem the police to be the guilty party, it is only right that the Mayor should also be punished. Hence he desired to retire from political life.

Russians Arrested.

Following the detention on Sunday at Nanking on the a.s. Kiangnan of two British officers and 23 Chinese members of the crew who are wanted as witnesses in the opium scandal, the Kiangnan left Nanking on Monday and arrived here yesterday evening.

Immediately upon her arrival, officers of the Chinese District Court arrested two Russians on board, believed to be connected with the opium affair. These two suspects will be escorted back to Nanking for enquiry to-morrow.

It is reported that the National Government contemplates first gathering all evidence by foreign and Chinese witnesses before a special court will be organised, when the prominent Chinese military and political suspects will be formally charged.

Seamen's Evidence.

Messrs. I To-min and Wei-hsin, representing the National Government, and Mr. Chang Chi-kiang, Chairman of the Opium Suppression Committee, who were emissaries sent to Shanghai to make an investigation into the affair, returned to Nanking this morning, and attended the meeting of the Administrative Council.

Interviewed, Mr. Chang Chi-kiang intimated that he desired to secure important evidence from the seamen on the a.s. Kiangnan, now detained in Nanking. Mr. Chang added that his enquiry in Shanghai had not been completed and if the Government wished for more evidence to be collected it should send other envoys to Shanghai.

Nanking, Dec. 4.

Yesterday the Nanking Opium Suppression Committee received a telegram from the Chinese Minister in Belgium, Mr. Wang Ching-chi, who pointed out that newspapers in Europe are giving much prominence and attention to the Shanghai opium scandal. The Minister urged the Government to exercise great discretion in dealing with the case, adding that this would afford foreign countries the opportunity of testing the sincerity of the Chinese in the campaign to eliminate the opium evil.
